

Credit card payments and special customer cases.

STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE — CUSTOMER SUCCESS

1. Purpose

This SOP defines how Customer Success processes credit card payments in Shopify and handles the recurring special cases that come up with wholesale accounts — failed payments, browser issues, multiple addresses on file, Vape Street Holdings franchise orders, customer tags and automatic discounts. The goal is consistent, error-free payment capture that matches the billing address on the cardholder authorization form on file.

2. Scope

Applies to all Customer Success staff who receive payment on wholesale Shopify orders using a credit card on file. Covers the standard processing flow, recovery when a charge fails, browser-related issues, address verification on multi-address accounts, the Vape Street Holdings recreate-and-cancel process, and the application of customer-specific tags and discounts. Out of scope: customer-facing checkout (Shopify storefront), retail point-of-sale payments, and any payment method other than credit card on file.

3. Processing a credit card payment

Follow these steps for every wholesale order paid by credit card on file.

1. Open File Explorer and navigate to P:\Emna\Payment\CARTES DE CREDIT (Public → Emna → Payment → Credit Cards).

2. Open the customer's credit card authorization form from the CARTES DE CREDIT folder.

3. In Shopify, open the order and click Percevoir le paiement (Receive Payment), then select Carte de crédit (Credit Card).

4. In the payment modal, enter the card number, expiration date, CVV, cardholder name, and billing address exactly as shown on the authorization form.

The screenshot displays the 'Payer par carte de crédit' (Pay by credit card) modal in the Shopify admin. The form is overlaid on the admin interface, which shows a sidebar with navigation options like 'Accueil', 'Commandes', 'Produits', and 'Clients'. The modal form contains the following fields:

- Numéro de carte: A text input field with a Visa logo icon.
- Date d'expiration: A text input field.
- CVV: A text input field.
- Nom sur la carte: A text input field.
- Adresse de facturation: A section with a checkbox 'Identique à l'adresse d'expédition' and several text input fields for 'Pays/région', 'Prénom', 'Nom', 'Entreprise', 'Adresse', 'Appartement, suite, etc.', 'Ville', 'Province', and 'Code postal'.

At the bottom of the modal, there are two buttons: 'Annuler' (Cancel) and 'Facturer 1576,75 $' (Invoice 1576.75 $).

5. Confirm the charge and verify the order status updates to Payé.

Non-negotiable rules for this section:

- Always use the billing address linked to the credit card.
- Do not use the shipping address as the billing address unless the authorization form explicitly says so.

4. If the payment does not go through

When the charge is declined or errors out:

1. Retry the charge once or twice.
2. If it still fails, check with the Operations Manager who holds backend access before contacting the customer.
3. Contact the customer only after the internal check, and only with specific information about what to update (new card, updated address, raise bank limit, etc.).

Common reasons a charge is declined:

- The card information has changed.
- The bank limit has been reached.
- The bank has blocked the payment.
- The card is expired.
- The billing address entered does not match the address on file with the bank.

5. Browser issues with Google Chrome

Google Chrome occasionally causes the Shopify payment modal to behave unexpectedly — fields fail to populate, the submit button does not respond, or the modal closes without confirming the charge. If this happens, open the order in a different browser (Edge or Firefox) and re-enter the payment. Do not retry the same charge repeatedly in Chrome.

6. Customers with multiple addresses

Some wholesale customers maintain multiple shipping locations and a separate billing address. Before charging the card:

- Verify which address is on file with the issuing bank for the card being charged.
- Enter that billing address in Shopify exactly as it appears on the authorization form, even if the order ships somewhere else.

Example: a customer has two locations on file, but the credit card is linked to only one. Using the wrong billing address causes the charge to fail even though the card is valid.

7. Vape Street Holdings — special process

Vape Street Holdings operates multiple franchise locations and has a custom order-handling workflow. Orders placed under any Vape Street account are processed under a single head-office account so payment and tagging stay consistent across franchises.

A. Recreate the order under Pamela Tremblay

1. Duplicate the original order in Shopify (use Autres actions → Dupliquer).
2. Change the customer on the duplicate to Pamela Tremblay.
3. Keep the franchise's shipping address on the duplicate — the order still ships to that location.
4. Set the billing address to the address linked to the credit card on file (from the authorization form).

B. Shipping instructions

- Add the order note "Please ship express" to every Vape Street order.
- If the order is below the free-shipping threshold, apply a $25 express shipping fee.

8. Cancelling the original order

After the recreated order is in place, cancel the franchise-name original so the books and inventory stay clean.

1. Open the original order and click Autres actions → Annuler la commande.
2. Uncheck “Send notification to customer” — the franchise must not receive a cancellation email.
3. Check “Restock items when cancelling” so inventory returns to stock.
4. Add the internal note “Order recreated under Pamela Tremblay account.” to the original order before confirming the cancellation.

9. Discounts and tags

Each customer record carries tags and automatic discounts that drive pricing and shipping rules. Before charging the card:

- Open the customer account in Shopify and review the tags on the right-hand panel.
- Confirm the correct automatic discount is applied to the order.
- Click Apply wholesale discounts on the order if the discount has not auto-applied.

10. Saving changes

Shopify does not auto-save edits. After every modification, click Save before moving to the next field or closing the order. Specifically save after:

- Changing the shipping or billing address.
- Adding an order note.
- Applying a discount.
- Editing customer details on the account.

11. General reminder

Many wholesale accounts carry exceptions or custom handling. Recurring patterns become familiar with experience, but when in doubt about a specific customer's billing, shipping, or discount setup, ask the Operations Manager or the account manager before charging the card. A failed charge with the wrong billing address is harder to unwind than a five-minute question.

Non-Compliance

Charging a card with a billing address that does not match the authorization form causes the charge to fail and, on repeated attempts, can trigger a fraud flag on the merchant account. Sending a cancellation email to a Vape Street franchise when the order has been recreated under the head-office account creates a support ticket and damages the franchise relationship. Skipping the Save click after editing an address or discount silently discards the change and produces a wrong-amount charge. Repeat instances of any of these are addressed by the Customer Success Lead during the weekly one-on-one.

Exceptions

Deviation from this SOP is permitted only with prior approval from the Operations Manager or the Customer Success Lead. Specifically: using a shipping address as the billing address requires written confirmation from the cardholder on the authorization form; waiving the $25 express fee on a sub-threshold Vape Street order requires Operations Manager approval; sending a cancellation email to a franchise requires Customer Success Lead approval. Every exception is recorded as an internal note on the Shopify order, naming the approver and the reason.
