

Adding products to an order after placement.

STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE — CUSTOMER SUCCESS

1. Purpose

This procedure defines how Customer Success handles a wholesale customer request to add products to an order that has already been placed. The goal is a clean, traceable change that keeps invoicing, inventory commitments, and shipping accurate — without leaving a confusing trail behind in Shopify.

2. Scope

Applies to every wholesale order where the customer emails Customer Success after placement asking to add products before the order ships. Out of scope: product removals, quantity reductions, refunds, and address changes — those are covered by their own SOPs.

3. Recommended methods

Never modify the original Shopify order directly. Direct modification sometimes works, sometimes corrupts notifications, and is hard to audit later. Use one of the two methods below instead.

Figure 1 — Customer email referencing invoice #DSS166599 asks for 3 Skipper Rope Cut and 3 Loose Cannon Rope Cut packs to be added.

Method 1 — Duplicate as a new draft order (preferred)

1. Locate the original order in Shopify and copy the order reference number (e.g. DSS166599).
2. Verify the order status — confirm it has not yet been fulfilled or shipped.
3. Duplicate the order to create a new draft order.
4. Rebuild the order so it contains both the original line items and the additional requested products.
5. Cancel the previous order once the new draft is confirmed and the customer accepts the updated invoice.

Method 2 — Create a supplementary order to combine

1. Create a new order containing only the additional items requested.
2. In the order note (top right), write “COMBINE WITH DSS_____” or “COMBINE WITH ORDER”, referencing the original order number.
3. Confirm wholesale discounts are applied on the supplementary order.
4. Match the shipping and billing addresses to the original order exactly.
5. Do not charge shipping — the customer is already paying shipping on the original order or has reached the free-shipping threshold.

Both methods are clearer, easier to track, and safer for invoicing than editing the original Shopify order.

4. Product verification

Before adding any item to the draft, confirm that the requested product is available in the correct provincial variant.

- Open Shopify > Products > Inventory and search for the product name.
- Check four columns: Unavailable, Committed, Available, and On hand.

- Confirm the Available value covers the requested quantity for the customer's province variant.

Figure 3 — Stock check for Loose Canon Rope Cut STLTH Pod (3 Pack): 43 available in the 20mg Ontario variant, 0 committed.

5. Quantity and eligibility check

Before adding the items, validate four things:

- Requested quantities — confirm against the customer's email word for word.
- Packaging rules — verify that pack size and carton multiples are respected (e.g. 3-pack vs single).
- Customer province — the variant must match the ship-to province (Ontario, Alberta, Federal Stamp).
- Shipping eligibility — confirm whether free shipping applies (e.g. Ontario customer over the wholesale threshold).

6. Building the draft order

1. Open the duplicated draft order. Confirm the original items appear with the correct line-item discounts.
2. Click Add a product to open the product selection modal.
3. Search for the requested product, select the correct provincial variant, and click Add.
4. Repeat for every additional product the customer requested.

Important Shopify behaviour

Newly added products usually appear at the bottom of the line-item list. Before generating the invoice, scroll to confirm quantities, discounts, shipping line, and final total are correct.

Figure 7 — Added items at bottom of the draft (3 Skipper, 3 Loose Cannon) with wholesale discount applied; free shipping for orders over $1,500 before tax. (This shipping threshold has since changed).

7. Customer reply procedure

Reply to the customer once the draft order is finalized. In the reply:

- Restate the products and quantities added — verbatim from the customer's request.

- Confirm that the previous order was cancelled and a new updated invoice generated.
- Attach the updated PDF invoice and double-check that it matches the customer's order number before sending.
- Invite the customer to proceed with payment at their convenience.

Example reply

Hi Ryan, thank you for reaching out. We have taken care of it and added 3 packs of Stlth Ropecut Skipper and 3 packs of Stlth Ropecut Loose Cannon to your order. We have cancelled the previous order and created a new one. Please find the updated invoice attached for your reference. You may proceed with the payment at your convenience. Let us know if you need anything else.

8. Final checklist before sending

- Stock verified for the correct provincial variant.
- Quantities confirmed against the customer's email.
- Draft order updated with all original and additional items.
- Shipping verified — not double-charged, threshold respected.
- Invoice regenerated and attached.
- Previous order cancelled.
- Correct attachment confirmed — no other customer's file.
- Quantities restated in writing in the reply.
- No confidential data exposed in the email body or attachment.

Non-Compliance

Direct edits to the live Shopify order, attaching another customer's invoice, double-charging shipping, or sending an unverified attachment are non-compliant. Each instance is logged by the Customer Success Lead, the rep is required to re-issue the corrected invoice to the customer the same day, and repeated occurrences are reviewed during the rep's monthly performance check-in.

Exceptions

An exception to the draft-rebuild flow may be approved by the Customer Success Lead when the original order has already been picked or partially fulfilled — in that case the supplementary-order method (Method 2) must be used and the original order is not cancelled. The exception is recorded in the order note and in the Customer Success log.
